Contexto Internacional - Style Sheet

Contexto Internacional requires that authors use the Harvard style of referencing. In the Harvard system, the author's surname and year of publication are cited in the text of your manuscript. In addition, full details must be included in a reference list at the end of the manuscript.

In-text citation

"An effective structure is important" (Redman 2006:22).

1. In-text citation

1.1. Author's name cited in the text

When making reference to an author's whole work in your text, it is sufficient to give the name followed by the year of publication of their work.

When writing for a professional publication, it is good practice to make reference to other relevant published work. This view has been supported by Cormack (1994).

Making reference to published work appears to be characteristic of writing for a professional audience (Cormack 1994).

However, where you are mentioning a particular part of the work, and making direct or indirect reference to this, a page reference should be included.

Cormack (1994:32-33) states that "when writing for a professional readership, writers invariably make reference to already published works".

"Writers should be encouraged to reference published research when addressing professional readership" (Cormack 1994:32-33).

1.2 More than one author cited in the text

Series of references should be enclosed chronologically within parentheses and separated by an and and/or semicolons with multiple works in the same year listed alphabetically by author:

Smith (1946), Collins (1947) and Jones (1948) have shown ...

Recent research (Collins 1998; Brown 2001; Davies 2008) shows that...

Note that where several publications from a number of authors are referred to, then the references should be cited in chronological order.

1.3 Two or three authors for a work

When there are two or three authors for a work they should all be listed (in the order in which their names appear in the original publication), with the name listed last preceded by an and.

White and Brown (2004) in their recent research paper found...

According to Green, Harris and Dunne (1969)...

Recent research (White and Brown 2004) suggests that...

Further research (Green, Harris and Dunne 1969) showed

1.4 Four or more authors for a work

Where there are several authors (four or more), only the first author should be used, followed by et al. meaning and others:

Green et al. (1995) found that the majority ...

Recent research (Green et al. 1995) has found that the majority of ...

1.5 Several works by one author in different years

If more than one publication from an author illustrates the same point and the works are published in different years, then the references should be cited in chronological order:

as suggested by Patel (1992, 1994) who found that... research in the nineties (Patel 1992, 1994) found that...

1.6 Several works by one author in the same year

If you are quoting several works published by the same author in the same year, they should be differentiated by adding a lower case letter directly, with no space, after the year for each item:

Earlier research by Dunn (1993a) found that...but later research suggested again by Dunn (1993b) that ... Bloggs (1993a, 1993b) has stated on more than one occasion that ...

1.7. Chapter authors in edited works

References to the work of an author that appears as a chapter, or part of a larger work, that is edited by someone else, should be cited within your text using the name of the contributory author not the editor of the whole work.

In his work on embedded liberalism, Ruggie (1991) states ...

Note that in the reference list at the end of your manuscript, you should include details of both the chapter author and the editor of the entire work:

Ruggie, John Gerard (1991) 'Embedded Liberalism Revisited: Institutions and Progress in International Economic Relations', in Emanuel Adler and Beverly Crawford, eds, Progress in Postwar International Relations, pp. 202-34. New York: Cambridge University Press.

1.8. Corporate authors

If the work is by a recognised organisation and has no personal author then it is usually cited under the body that commissioned the work. This applies to publications by associations, companies, government departments etc. It is acceptable to use standard abbreviations for these bodies, e.g. RCN, in your text, providing that the full name is given at the first citing with the abbreviation in brackets:

1st citation:

... following major pioneering research in 2006 undertaken by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) it has been shown that ...

2nd citation:

More recently the IMF (2007) has issued guidelines for...

1.9. Second-hand references

You may come across a summary of another author's work in the source you are reading, which you would like to make reference to in your own document:

Research recently carried out in the monetary adjustment area by Brown (1966 cited in Bassett 1986:42) found that...

(Brown 1966 cited in Bassett 1986:142)

Note that the reference list at the end of your manuscript should only contain works that you have read.

1.10 Websites

When citing material found on a website, you should identify the authorship of the website. This may be a corporate author, an organisation or a company. To find the date of publication, reference to this might be found at the bottom of a web page relating to copyright, or from a date headline.

Recent research on genocide (BBC 2009) has shown ...
